

ABOUT BURNED WORK.

Burning Decorative Designs on Wood, Leather, Ivory, Paper, Glass, Etc.

The mode of burning designs into or upon wood, leather, etc., has been variously termed, as pyrography, poker work and burnt work. The word "pyrography" means writing or etching with fire, but burnt decoration is not always etching; it more often looks like painting and relief work combined. The term "poker work" was applied where heated poker were the instruments used, and it cannot be properly applied to the modern work, which is done with a regular canter or electrical apparatus. The name "burnt work," however, applies equally well under all circumstances, being always appropriate, no matter how the heat is applied, and The Delineator thus names the art in giving the following information:

The merits of burned work are many, the chief one being its great durability. As a substitute for wood carving, it is satisfactory. The work has both form and color, a great variety of tints being possible, from deep black to the lightest shades of brown, and it is sometimes created like bas relief in large decorations on wood.

After a design is prepared it can be executed with astonishing rapidity. The variety of strokes is unlimited, ranging from fine ones that suggest etching to those that resemble the broad, blended strokes of a brush, the style of stroke in every case depending on the artist's purpose, and points can be obtained in sizes to suit all needs.

There is an idea abroad that this work is commonly done with heated dies, like those used for stamping packing boxes, etc. This belief is erroneous. The burning must be done freehand to produce really artistic results. True, dies are used, and often with good effect, in some styles of work. Indeed there is a factory near New York where this so called burned work is quite extensively done. It takes an artist to do full justice to burnt work, but any one who can draw with moderate skill will be able to derive much pleasure and profit from a study of it. Designs can be readily transferred if the worker is unable to draw them without aid.

The tools with which the work is now done differ radically from those employed even a dozen years ago, when the poker was still in vogue. The principal tool looks like an ordinary lead pencil, but is a trifle larger. In place of the lead is a hollow point of platinum, which, being heated, is used like a pencil point in drawing and shading, the thick handle protecting the hand.

This work is now more accessible to women than when heavy poker and the great heat of a furnace were the necessary features of "burnt art." Leather of any color, texture or finish can be used. The possibilities of this material were demonstrated at the World's fair, notably by a pair of leather curtains hanging in the doorway of the California room of the Woman's building. Though leather is more expensive than wood, it is highly favored by workers in this art, which is also applied to ivory, paper and glass.

Darned Net Pattern.

Numbered with many other useful and welcome suggestions from Modern Priscilla is the one that pretty borders for curtains, toilet tables and the like may be made of darned net. Every woman can therefore have a pretty border.

The design to which attention is called can be worked in white linen flims or with Roman flims of any desired color.

This is the Medicine That Makes People Well!

WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co.,
Gentlemen—I was very much run down, had no appetite at all, was very nervous, had no sleep night or day; to sum it all up, I WAS PERFECTLY WRETCHED. But thanks to Paine's Celery Compound I can now eat and sleep and work just as well as I could before I was taken sick. When I commenced taking the Compound I weighed 130 pounds; I now weigh 158 pounds and do all the work for my family of five. I have recommended the Compound to three families already and they are very much pleased with it. I am now taking my fifth bottle, and would RECOMMEND IT TO ALL WHO ARE SUFFERING WITH STOMACH TROUBLE OR NERVOUS TROUBLE.
Yours respectfully,
MRS. AUG. DARROW.
